The purpose of this corporation (VFW) shall be fraternal, patriotic, historical, charitable, and educational; to preserve and strengthen comradeship among its members; to assist worthy comrades; to perpetuate the memory and history of our dead, and to assist their widows and orphans; to maintain true allegiance to the Government of the United States of America, and fidelity to its institutions of American freedom, and to preserve and defend the United States from all her enemies, whomsoever.

Commander's Corner

Honored Members, May has been a very busy month here at the Post. I want to thank everyone who has given so much of their time to the Post. The men and women of the Auxiliary have made this a great month.

The new officers will take office around the end of June. I am looking forward to working with them this year and next. I am asking all members to get behind them and help keep our Post on the right track.

At this time, we are 21 members short of having 100% membership. We need everyone's help to bring in new members and encourage those who haven't paid their dues to do so. The life of the VFW is its membership. I know that most of you know someone out there that is eligible to become a member. Your help is needed.

We have had a great turnout so far to help put flags on graves for Memorial Day. We picked up 5 more cemeteries to place flags in due to the ages and health of some people that used to do it. We are also supplying flags to other cemeteries that we haven't done in the past. I am so proud of our members that step up and get the job done when others are not willing to do so.

In our next newsletter we will have pictures of our Memorial Day service for those that couldn't attend.

May all of you be safe and healthy in the upcoming year and remember to say a prayer for the men and women who have served and for those that are serving now.

Commander - Joe Hardin

May was really a busy month here at the post. We had (4) Friday dinners, (2) Saturday breakfasts (2) Saturday birthdays, (4) Thursday Texas Holdem Tournaments, (1) NASCAR Sunday plus Memorial Daywhew what a month!! Thanks to all who volunteered to cook, clean, bartend, etc. and thanks to all who came and supported all of the different functions.

Ok I'm on a roll here let's just stay with the thank you. I have the best group of guys who consistently show up to help – Dennis and Frank who stood for hours breading and frying fish then back again on Sunday to help with the breading and frying of our tenderloins. Steve and Mark who helps with the orders and handling of the money and delivering food or washing dishes and cleaning tables etc. Speaking of washing dishes -have I mentioned the clean-up before – all those dishes and the mess that breading all that fish and those tenderloins. Then we have the women like Chris who never fails to bring Leonard's salad on our NASCAR Sundays or one of our favorite desserts for our Friday dinner special. The Markers Tell a Story

Bob Lanning told me a story. Some grave markers in the Garrison Chapel Cemetery had told him. Bob was serving on the Honor Guard. Clustered together, presumably because of their common last name, were the VA grave markers for a Master Sergeant (WWI, WWII, Korea), a Sergeant (WWII), and Corporal (WWII). From the birth dates, wars, and dates of death Bob deduced these were a father and two sons. One son's date of death was in 1943, the middle of WWII. Died in service.

Last summer Rory Joe the Wonder Dog and I were walking among the markers in an Owen County cemetery. (Polly was playing her Scottish bagpipes for an interment on the other side of the cemetery. Rory and I were trying to stay out of sight.) Similar to Bob's observation, I found the VA markers for a father and two sons. I also found the wife and mother's civilian grave marker (made in the same flat bronze VA style) next to the father's. She had been the last to pass away. Her two sons and husband had served and died, and she had time to ponder this after they were gone. She served as well, just in a different way.

Today I'm pondering how to introduce Jonathan George on Memorial Day. I can't talk too long, no matter how tempting the microphone and the audience, because people are there to hear Jonathan and to gratefully remember the veterans who are no longer with us. Older people are standing and they hurt. Very young people don't understand and it's hard for them to be still. But the microphone begs for a joke. But Memorial Day is a solemn occasion. But maybe just one joke? How many times do you get a chance to josh a General officer?

All the military service members whom we 'memorialize' on this special day were young once. Some died young and never lived to marry, to have kids and grandkids. But I bet these young, healthy men and women joked and laughed during their short lives – especially when on liberty, or in the recruit barracks at night when the drill sergeants were not around, or on that last leave before deployment. Some died old and still fondly recalled the jokes and laughs and comradeship from several decades before. I don't think they would be offended if we kid around just a little as we remember them, especially we who also served and we who will join them in eternity not too long from now. They were every bit as alive as we are. They played. They felt the wind. They saw the sky. They grew up. They loved. And they were – and are – very special. They defended the United States of America.

Members of The Veterans of Foreign Wars have a special relationship with poppies; a relationship which involves history, fund raising for disabled veterans, and grateful remembrance. Here is the background of a poem which expresses our obligation to those veterans who have passed away:

Canadian Army doctor John McCrae began writing 'In Flanders

Fields' on the evening of 2 May 1915. The death of his good friend, Alexis Helmer, was the inspiration. On the morning of that same day Alexis had been killed instantly by a direct hit from a German shell. What body parts could be found were later gathered into sandbags and laid in an army blanket for burial that evening. Near to the 1st Canadian Brigade's position there was a small burial ground which had been established during the First Battle of Ypres in the autumn of the previous year, 1914. In the absence of the chaplain, Major McCrae, as second in command, was required to conduct a service at the graveside. He recited some passages from the Church of England's 'Order of Burial of the Dead' from memory. A wooden cross marked the burial place. The grave has since been lost. Lieutenant Alexis Helmer is now commemorated on Panel 10 of the Menin Gate Memorial to the Missing in Ypres; one of the 54,896 soldiers who have no known grave in the battlefields of the Ypres Salient. Major John McCrae himself died due to pneumonia less than three years later on 28 January 1918. We remember Lieutenant Helmer and Major McCrae because of words written following a painful grave side service for a friend, one hundred and one years ago this May, 2016:

In Flander's Fields

In Flanders Fields the poppies blow,
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky,
The larks, still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead.
Short days ago,
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved and now we lie,
In Flanders Fields.
Take up our quarrel with the foe
To you, from failing hands, we throw,
The torch, be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us, who die,
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow,
In Flanders Fields.
